Welcome to
Zion Assembly Church of God Church

We are so glad that you are here with us today!

Church attendance doesn't solve all of life's problems. A building won't fix a broken heart by itself. But a faithful church, is one of the last steady lights in many communities. It's where babies are dedicated. Where couples promise "till death do us part." Where prodigals slip back in on a Sunday morning. And yes…where families gather when someone has taken their final breath. So I'm asking, "If it's good enough to carry you out of this world, maybe it's worth walking into while you're still here."

Maybe it's worth supporting before you need it. Not because the church is perfect. Not because the preacher never gets loud. But because somebody has to keep the lights on. And most of the time, it's the same faithful few doing it.

There's still time to be part of that church. There's still time to sit on that pew. There's still time to shake that pastor's hand and have him pray with you. Still time to help those sweet ladies that's always cooking in the kitchen.

Don't wait until your body is carried into the church to appreciate what's been there all along. Because one day, whether you liked it or not, that church may be the last place your family gathers on your behalf. That pastor that you didn't like, may be the very one that comforts your family and has the last word over you. Those singers you didn't care for may sing your last tribute. Those old folks that you didn't care for will probably cook for your remaining friends and family after the service. And those older men will stay and wipe down the tables and take the trash out. And wouldn't it be wonderful if you'd helped keep the doors open?
